

Finding an Accountability Partner

Our lesson text pointed out that the holiness of God requires the keeping of spiritual boundaries. Having an accountability partner is a good way to help yourself mind those spiritual boundaries. Use this worksheet to help you seek an effective accountability partner.

List ten Christian friends.

Place a checkmark next to the name of each person who:

- ... is a close friend.
- ... has time to meet regularly.
- ... has been a friend for some time.
- ... exhibits signs of spiritual maturity.
- ... has always been honest with you.
- ... can be trusted to keep private information confidential.
- ... will be understanding when you fail.
- ... has built a solid marriage and friendships.
- ... is a faithful student of the Scriptures.
- ... has a meaningful prayer life.

Review your list again, noting those with the most checkmarks. Before discussing the idea of being accountability partners with anyone on your list, spend time in prayer, asking God to lead you to the person who can best help you keep within your spiritual boundaries.
