

Where Am I?

The incredible news of the resurrection of Jesus challenges us today just as much as it did those on the day it happened! Our Scripture text today speaks of three different mental states the first witnesses of the resurrection experienced. Evaluate your own state of mind concerning the resurrection by checking as many of the boxes below that apply to you. How will an absolute certainty that Jesus rose from the dead affect your life?

When it comes to the resurrection, sometimes I am . . .

Perplexed/wondering/conflicted.	<input type="checkbox"/> It seems to defy common sense. <input type="checkbox"/> It seems to be too good to be true. <input type="checkbox"/> But people who seem to be reasonable believe it is true.
Remembering.	<input type="checkbox"/> I recall what I have been taught about the Bible. <input type="checkbox"/> I recall people with faith who have lived victorious lives.
Recognizing/knowing.	<input type="checkbox"/> Partaking in the Lord's Supper helps make the resurrection more real to me. <input type="checkbox"/> When I have doubts, conversations with believing friends help me address those doubts.

Because Jesus lives, I can _____
